

Personal acknowledgements

Hereby I want to acknowledge my family, which tolerated my absence and physical distress caused by these tumultuous three years and nonetheless always showed support.

I want to acknowledge those who were close to me, my long-time friends and my colleagues (MRT + Kat) which stayed close in the last two years. A particular thank you to Michele Bonanomi, at his last years of medical school, who helped me fact-checking some chapters in this document.

I want to acknowledge the professor who gave me the opportunity of working on such an important project, Prof. Marco Marcon. Also, a shoutout to Marco Brando Mario Paracchini, which taught me so much and was in constant communication with me throughout this project, which I know it is a quite rare occurrence among Thesis supervisors. I also acknowledge Gruppo Multimedica and Prof. Gensini, who showed interest in this topic and to which, I hope, this document can be of help in possibly saving lives and suffering in the future.

Most important of all, I acknowledge Agnese Polenghi, whom I love with all my heart and without which, possibly, I wouldn't have maintained sanity in these last two years. Hopefully I have not stressed you out or bored you so much, as I hope you will walk with me through many more projects of our own.
